Cidefe initiates local and national training sessions for local councillors and civil servants. This involves a range of 6,500 sessions every year, with a variety of hundreds of speakers, including elected representatives, scholars, representatives of associations, unions, of national, European and international institutions. We also provide new technology resources, paper and non-paper documentation. With about 10,000 members (local councillors), we bring together players on a territorial basis and on issue basis. Our sessions address a broad range of issues from water and waste management to education, housing, international cooperation, local funding, media training...
