Executive Summary

This strategy document presents ALDA's Flagship on Migration Initiative developed within ALDA Migration Hub, an initiative that consolidates the association's long-standing engagement with migration through a coherent and cross-cutting approach. In response to the instrumentalisation of migration and its politicisation across Europe, ALDA reaffirms its commitment to protecting the rights of people on the move by strengthening collaboration among local authorities, civil society, diaspora organisations, and EU institutions. The Hub clusters activities, projects, and policy initiatives under six strategic pillars, focusing on integration, participation, capacity building, advocacy, and cross-sectoral cooperation. Anchored in ALDA's broader 2024–2028 strategy, the document highlights key international frameworks, ongoing programmes, and project outputs, all aiming to shape inclusive and sustainable migration governance rooted in local democracy and community resilience.

INTRODUCTION TO ALDA HUB ON MIGRATION

This document presents the strategy of ALDA thematic hub on migration which clusters ongoing projects, activities and the expertise accumulated by our association since its establishment in 1999.

The Hubs are thematic groups intended to ensure a more holistic and fluid action of the organisation. Therefore, the Hubs aim to:

- Strengthen ALDA's commitment by promoting a thematically structured knowledge and know-how, promoting a better coherence between our ongoing projects;
- Make the involvement of members more systematic through animation and participation in project activities (events, trainings, content/paper productions, ...) through the close collaboration between Hubs and Working groups;
- Encourage cross-departmental interaction, especially with the development team and regional units, which have their own geographic specialisation but they cross the thematic hubs with their activities;
- Favour the professional growth and specialisation of ALDA staff in line with some of the aims of the Staff improvement.

Flagship initiative on Migration

Due to the growing instrumentalisation, misunderstanding and mishandling of the topic of migration as a threat, in particular, in the EU area, ALDA commits to adopt a specific approach dedicated to supporting the rights of people on the move, newcomers and diasporas as well as the whole recipient community, in particular working with Local Authorities on the management of inclusive communities and with Civil Society Organisations and citizens groups on the representativeness of migrant populations and their participation in decision-making processes at the local level. ALDA also endeavours to serve as a bridge between grassroots knowledge and the formulation of state and EU policies, recognising the importance of integrating the day-to-day experiences and insights of its members into higher-level decision-making processes. By advocating for the adoption of tools and legislations that are not only more relevant but also more responsive to the complex realities of migration, ALDA aims to ensure that policies are effectively tailored to address the diverse needs and challenges faced by migrant communities and individuals and their host societies.

ALDA's Migration Strategy and Advocacy 2024-2028 framework focuses on 2 main key actions

- Coordinated Action for Migration Rights: coordinated actions between local authorities, governmental institutions, civil society, and diaspora organisations to safeguard migrants rights and integration.
- Community Integration Advocacy: Drive integration, inclusion, and participation of migrants in host communities as well as providing policy recommendations to EU institutions based on feedback from the local level.

This initiative takes stock and seeks to critically act up international, regional and national policies, as well as popular debates, relating to the migration field, in particular for what concerns the EU level as well as its neighbourhood. Through its new strategy and advocacy of key actions in the field of migration, ALDA with its member organisations and network aims to take the lead within the EU's migration framework and call to join forces to enhance and address the rights of people in the move and to influence the EU policies in this field.

ALDA moreover commits to adopt a transversal approach, by considering the migrant population as well as the recipient community as constant beneficiaries of its projects and actions.

Concrete ongoing actions undertaken under ALDA's Migration Hub entail:

- Taxonomy, mapping and benchmarking of good practices on integration (2024-2025)
- Innovation solutions to improve local governance training (2024-2025)
- Needs assessment at the Community of Practices (CoPs) level, in collaboration with the advisory board of Migration, academic/research institutions, CSOs, NGOs and LAs (2024-2025)
- ToT to promote migrant people's participation in the design and implementation of integration policies, in collaboration with LDAs and International Organisations (2024-2026)
- CoPs workshops to promote migrant people's participation, in collaboration with LDAs and International Organisations (2024-2026)
- Peer-mentoring sessions are held by each CoPs

Background on Migration and Global Trends

Migration and mobility are some of the most enduring phenomena in all of human history. Every society in the world has been affected and enriched by them, however, the ways in which they occur and their mechanisms are constantly evolving. Examining their variations in scale, direction, demographics and frequency present difficult but necessary tasks in understanding how migration is evolving and how to inform and implement effective policies, programmes and operational responses to address this multifaceted phenomenon at multiple levels, from local to international.

According to the World Bank, about 184 million people live outside of their country of nationality as of today. Very often, people are driven by issues affecting their country of origin such as poverty and exclusion, climate change consequences, wars and poor or non-existing status of human rights. However, not all of the issues leading people to leave their countries are currently recognised by international and national legislations as legitimate. Furthermore, the negative impact of the experience of migrating people in the countries of transit and arrival is exacerbated by misinformation and its politicisation.

International, Regional, and EU Policy Framework

ALDA's work takes place in a cosmos of international, regional and national policies that seek to regulate the migration phenomena under different aspects:

- The Common European Asylum System (CEAS) (2013): The current system is still characterised by differing treatment of asylum seekers and varying recognition rates among EU Member States. This divergence is what encourages secondary movements and is partly due to the fact that the current rules grant Member States a great deal of discretion in how they apply the common EU rules. The 5 legislative instruments governing this system are the Asylum Procedures Directive, the Reception Conditions Directive, the Qualification Directive, the Dublin Regulation and the EURODAC Regulation.

- The Joint Valletta Action Plan (JVAP), adopted in 2015 in Malta, constitutes a reference framework for European action in terms of cooperation with partner countries across the entire migration field. The JVAP defines a series of priorities in strengthening the governance of migration between Europe and Africa, and is structured around five areas: The benefits of migration in terms of development, and the fight against the root causes of irregular migration and the phenomenon of displaced persons - Legal migration and mobility - Protection and asylum - Preventing and combating irregular migration, migrant smuggling and human trafficking - Return, readmission and reintegrations. The implementation of the JVAP is monitored by the mechanisms of the Khartoum Process, the Rabat Process and the Niamey Declaration.

- The Global Compact for Safe, Orderly and Regular Migration, endorsed in 2018 in Marrakech, is the first comprehensive UN agreement on a common approach to international migration in all its dimensions. Articulated around 23 objectives, it recognises the need for a cooperative approach to optimise the global benefits of migration, while taking into account the risks and challenges faced by migrants and communities in countries of origin, transit or destination.

- The EU Action Plan on integration and inclusion for 2021-2027 focuses on the essentials of successful integration and inclusion into a host society: education and training employment and skills, health and housing, as well as promoting the active participation of migrants and EU citizens with a migrant background in host societies. The plan also takes into account the specific needs of different groups, including EU citizens with a migrant background, women, religious minorities, and for persons with disabilities, for example.

- The Council of Europe Action Plan on Protecting Vulnerable Persons in the Context of Migration and Asylum in Europe (2021-2025) is articulated around 4 main pillars: Ensuring protection and promoting safeguards by identifying and responding to vulnerability, Ensuring access to law and justice, Fostering democratic participation and, Enhancing cooperation between migration and asylum authorities in Council of Europe member states.

- Report on Migration and Asylum from the European Commission COM (2022) 740, whose key findings revolve around the experience of the first-ever activation of the Temporary Protection Directive to the benefit of the Ukrainian population fleeing the Russian war of aggression, and the setting up of a Solidarity Platform and the implementation of a 10-point plan for a coordinated European response among EU Member States. This divergence is what encourages secondary movements and is partly due to the fact that the current rules grant Member States a great deal of discretion in how they apply the common EU rules. The 5 legislative instruments governing this system are the Asylum Procedures Directive, the Reception Conditions Directive, the Qualification Directive, the Dublin Regulation and the EURODAC Regulation

- The EU Pact on Migration and Asylum (2024), approved by the European Parliament on 10th April 2024, that reinforces the focus on ensuring external border management through the implementation of the new IT architecture and interoperability (it is worth noting that the EU Artificial Intelligence Act does not extend the prohibitions on AI systems to the migration context); on more efficient procedures for the evaluation of asylum applications; on the introduction of a “solidarity framework” between member states to share the responsibility of asylum applications and on embedding migration in international partnerships, in particular for what concerns preventing irregular departures and cooperation on readmission and return.

National Policies on Migration – Focus on France

According to the inter-ministerial strategy of cooperation “Migrations and development 2022-2030” (Migration et développement 2022-2030), France intends to develop a global approach based on the link between migration and development, focusing on preventing irregular immigration and related risks and improve living conditions in countries of origin, as well as ensuring that regular migration acts as a vector for development.

In view of these factors, the French strategy focuses its actions on several objectives:

- Establishing a controlled framework for “safe, orderly, and regular migration”;
- Preserving the human rights and dignity of migrant people, equipping States to manage and govern migration;
- Maximising the positive effects of migration on the sustainable development of the societies and countries concerned;
- Its guidelines are based on the fundamental principles of official development assistance (ODA), human rights and the protection of vulnerable people;
- Promote informed, balanced discourse on migration based on reliable, objective data;
- Promote effective, multi-level governance of migration within the framework of cooperation with third countries;
- Develop a partnership approach, which also entails support to the most committed and active states, including the prevention of irregular flows, and to take account of the quality of cooperation on return and readmission.

In this strategy, there are some clear references to the local level:

- In promoting effective, multi-level governance of migration within the framework of cooperation with third countries, working with civil society and diasporas organisation (with whom France has a long-standing commitment) is seen as key, as well as capacity building for local authorities and the promotion of local partnerships;
- In developing a partnership approach, it supports the inclusion of civil society in the design and implementation of migration and development nexus programs;
- In combating the root causes of forced displacement, it recognised the importance of supporting the democratic processes in the countries of origin, as well as the creation of job opportunities;
- Local authorities are considered relevant players in the promotion of regular channels of mobility;
- A multi-stakeholder approach, with the key role of civil society organisations, should be adopted to guarantee migrants' rights, access to basic services and dignity.

ALDA's work on migration is informed about the international, regional and national regulations, and along its members reserves the freedom to advocate for the respect of the rights of migrating people, specifically for what concerns at the local democracy scale.

Specific advocacy and action points were identified with consulted ALDA members, such as:

- In France, many criticisms are raised against the current forced displacement of migrants from Paris to other cities in the framework of the preparation of the Olympic games in the capital, with little or no consultation with these municipalities. How can ALDA raise awareness about the issue?
- Migration is being instrumentalised for political reasons by many EU and non-EU governments (UK with the deportations in Rwanda, Italy with the externalisation of borders in Albania, the EU agreements with Libya and Turkey), but it is also growing at the local level. ALDA is committed to fight against the instrumentalisation of migration at all levels, concretely at the local level but with advocacy means at wider levels, too.
- According to their current statutes as countries of departure, transit or destination in terms of migration, different countries face different challenges. ALDA members based in countries experiencing these specific challenges can be brought together to share the expertise related to the different phases of migration.
- Local Authorities need further support in advocating for better migration policies on the basis of their experience on field.
- Despite being mostly active at the local level, concerns are raised towards the French policies on the treatment of unaccompanied minors and the usage of AI in EU external borders management, which is not considered in the recently approved EU Artificial Intelligence Act.

Institutions we will address: European Commission (DG HOME, DG NEAR, DG INTPA), EEAS (EU Delegations), French Ministry of Foreign Affairs, ecc.

Current Debates and Key Advocacy Topics

The data and arguments in this document are from the IOM's World migration report 2022, except for the definitions and the info-graphics in the "Migration and climate change" section.

ALDA's work on migration takes place not only in a policy framework, but also a public arena that is crossed by multiple narratives and debates around the topic of migration. In this panorama, we consider it key to take into account the following aspects:

- The phenomenon of migration is often ill-estimated, since the data show that in 2020 international migrants were 3,6% of the global population (with only a slight increase since 1995), while the great majority of people do not migrate across borders but rather within countries. This means that staying within one's country of birth overwhelmingly remains the norm, and historically migration from low-income countries has been very limited.
- While the EU regional and, in many cases, national narratives seem to suggest that migration by refugees is mostly affecting its region, in 2020 data reported Turkey as being the largest refugees host country of the world, with mostly non-EU countries (Lebanon, Pakistan, Iran, Uganda, Sudan, Bangladesh, Ethiopia) figuring in the top 10 recipient countries, and the only exception of Germany as a country that implemented specific asylum policies. On the other hand, for what concerns the phenomenon of international migration per se, Asia is the most impacted continent with a growth of around 74% in the first 20 years of the 2000s. This misperception has contributed to a polarising effect, with migration activity increasingly being associated with highly developed countries. This correlation raises the key issue of visa access and related migration policies: new research shows that citizens of wealthy countries are much more able to access regulated mobility regimes than those from low-income countries. However, the centrality of the Mediterranean region stands out as being the place with the highest known number of migration-related deaths.
- Anti-migrant disinformation can be identified as a specific responsibility of news media, politicians and often far-right actors. However, the countermeasures to it are still lacking significant scientific research and are restricted to rich, well-resourced countries, while efforts to counteract disinformation should be more coordinated and organic.
- Climate change induced migration has only recently started to be included in global policy discussions (namely the UN Framework Convention on Climate Change), and is still missing a comprehensive legal framework therefore imposing a greater vulnerability to the growing number of those affected by it.
- The phenomenon of migrants trafficking has reached virtually every country, being known to infringe human rights of migrating people (through slavery, torture, blackmail and exploitation) and almost 90% of irregular migration cases can be related to it. Human trafficking is explicitly recognised as a challenge in the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development, however a consensus is missing on how to face the phenomenon and there remains a shortfall in political will to introduce effective policies to that end.

Therefore, ALDA recognises the relevance of the migration phenomena as well as its growing instrumentalisation, and this has led to the desire to create a specific thematic hub that can focus information and projects on migration in an agile manner and through a holistic and intersectional approach.

Specific advocacy and action points have been identified with ALDA members:

- The paradox of the instrumentalisation of migrants as the cause of social issues in EU societies, while EU societies themselves are ageing and therefore in need of new generations to reinforce themselves both socially and economically.
- One important objective can be to reinforce the migrant populations to take ownership of a new perspective and narrative where they are, concretely, those who will save EU societies in the future. Newcomers will be those who will support the Europeans, (becoming themselves the new European) pension system, the European young generations. What can ALDA do to enhance awareness about this paradox?

Stakeholders we will address: CSOs working on migration as well as their national and international networks, diaspora communities, media outlets

VISION OF THE MIGRATION HUB

ALDA acknowledges migration as an inherent aspect of human history, recognising the necessity for coordinated efforts and actions among governmental institutions, civil society organisations, and local authorities to ensure the integration and protection of the rights of individuals on the move, thereby fostering better understanding and support within their host communities. Especially in the current situation of the EU and its policies, ALDA recognises that migration is an issue to be addressed at multiple levels, starting from the local level, and necessitating comprehensive strategies and collaboration across various sectors and stakeholders. Multicultural societies are already our realities, and as ALDA we believe this diversity will continue shaping our future, with all the positive impacts that biodiversity can bring in nature.

Through the creation of the thematic hub on migration, ALDA aims to tackle these challenges forward as already demonstrated by the previous 10 implemented projects (LIME, MIICT, BRIGHT, EPIC, PERCEPTIONS, 3STEPS, DEVOTE, SHAPE, SMELT, INCLUDATE). The projects' aims were to contribute with actions and activities aiming at supporting the integration, inclusion and participation of migrants in the hosting communities, therefore within a crucial role for Local Authorities and territorial bodies in coordination and enhancing their local integration systems and public services targeting migrants, refugees and asylum seekers - as well as providing policy recommendations to EU institutions based on feedback from the local level.

Strategic Objectives and Activity Pillars 2024-2028

In the frame of ALDA's 2024-2028 new strategy, specific commitments are being taken for what concerns the work around the topic of migration. Through projects such as SHAPE, EPIC, PERCEPTIONS, SMELT, LIME, INCLUDATE, 3STEPS, EPIC-UP, AMIL and OUT4INGOV ALDA went directly to work on the creation of local networks for the support of migrants, the dissemination of knowledge and practices necessary for integration processes, the involvement of people with a migratory background in democratic processes and in the creation of integration policies on several levels, and on the issue of migrants' and returnees' perceptions of Europe and the EU and how these can be misled by misinformation.

These initiatives are just the tip of the iceberg about the work that ALDA has done and continues to do on migration. The creation of the Migration Hub is therefore a necessary and positive development to give ALDA the ability to make its work on migration even more capable of generate change and have an impact on policies operating at multiple levels and, therefore, on migrants' life and the enjoyment of their rights by giving priorities to the following issues:

KEY FINDINGS AND NEEDS IDENTIFIED SINCE THE CREATION OF THE MIGRATION HUB - 2025

Since its inception, the ALDA Migration Hub has worked to foster a comprehensive understanding of migration, emphasising its dual nature as both a challenge and an opportunity. By promoting dialogue and cooperation, the Hub has contributed to shifting the narrative on migration from crisis management to a broader perspective that acknowledges its economic, social, and political dimensions. This vision was reaffirmed during key European discussions in which ALDA took part.

- At the June 2024 CIVEX - Commission for Citizenship, Governance, Institutional and External Affairs- Conference on Migration in Vilnius, migration was highlighted as an opportunity rather than a crisis, particularly in addressing depopulation and labor shortages. Local authorities were recognized as crucial actors in shaping more inclusive policies, collaborating with migrant organisations, and leveraging legal frameworks and external funding to maximise the economic benefits of migration.
- Similarly, at the DG HOME – Migration and Home Affairs event in June 2024, the European Commission outlined its migration policy priorities under the Pact on Migration and Asylum, set to take effect in June 2026. Key areas of focus include enhancing temporary protection for refugees, strengthening anti-trafficking measures, improving border management systems, and increasing financial resources through the AMIF fund. Looking ahead, the Commission aims to reinforce global partnerships, boost private sector involvement, enhance crisis anticipation, and establish new agreements with third countries, with a strategic agenda to be introduced in July 2025.
- In November 2024, the 11th “Integrating Cities Conference” in Bologna, “Shaping Our Cities with Migrant and Local Communities”, brought together policymakers, city officials, NGOs, and migrant communities to explore best practices for inclusion and meaningful participation at the local level. Organised by Eurocities within the framework of the UNITES (European Commission’s AMIF program), the conference served as a pivotal platform for dialogue, showcasing the role of cities as frontrunners in fostering integration strategies. ALDA engaged in a strong discussion through its contributions, particularly in the panel “Cities Fostering Safer Spaces for the Participation of Vulnerable Migrants,” featuring Antonella Valmorbida, ALDA’s Secretary General. Antonella introduced ALDA’s migration strategy, emphasizing the importance of safe spaces as hubs of empowerment where migrants can fully realize their potential. She highlighted ALDA’s commitment to viewing migration as an opportunity to shape inclusive and democratic societies rather than merely a challenge to be managed.
- ALDA also held a panel discussion at the International Observatory for Participatory Democracy (IOPD) in Valongo October 2024. This panel discussion was organised in partnership with the Anna Lindh Foundation as part of the international conference hosted by the International Observatory for Participatory Democracy (IOPD). The overarching theme of this year’s IOPD conference was “Populist Threats: Building Democratic Resilience with Participatory Communities.
- The Gdansk event in November 2024, focused on democratic resilience within the Eastern Partnership (EaP), especially in fragile contexts.

By actively engaging in these high-level discussions, ALDA reinforces its commitment to connecting local and European migration governance, ensuring that policies reflect the realities on the ground while fostering inclusive and sustainable approaches to migration.

NETWORKS AND INSTITUTIONAL COOPERATION

ALDA also actively collaborates with various external networks to promote local democracy and citizen participation. Among these collaborations, two key partnerships stand out: those with EU civil society and the Committee of the Regions.

EU Civil Society

ALDA is a member of Civil Society Europe (CSE), a platform that brings together 28 European networks of civil society organisations. CSE's main objective is to facilitate dialogue between European civil society organisations and policymakers, strengthening the activities of these organisations and their relationships with institutions.

Committee of the Regions

Within the framework of the 19th European Week of Regions and Cities, on the 12th of October 2021, ALDA, together with the European Partnership for Democracy, organised the online workshop "Boosting territorial recovery through innovative citizens' participation".

The main theme of the workshop was citizens' engagement, and how it can improve local governance and play a key role in addressing the main challenges the EU is facing right now related to the environment, digitalisation, social inclusion and economic recovery, along with the revitalisation of European cities in the post-pandemic reality.

Through these collaborations, ALDA contributes to strengthening local democracy, civic participation, and cooperation between local authorities and civil society across Europe.

AT A GLANCE

The AMIL project aims to promote the sustainable integration of third-country nationals (TCNs) into the labour market by expanding and strengthening the 'MEIC Migrants Economic Integration Cluster'. This multi-level and multi-stakeholder cluster is intended to enhance coordination among key territorial socio-economic actors, thereby fostering the integration of TCNs into the labour market. The benefits for our target group, migrant people, will be increased employability and socio-economic inclusion.

At EU level, the aim is to disseminate the MEIC model. The project will focus on upscaling established good practices, customising socio-economic insertion paths at the local level, strengthening national/regional systems for taking charge of target persons, and building the capacities of key actors at the European level. The MEIC model will be disseminated through dissemination activities, including international workshops for stakeholders of several EU Member States.

OBJECTIVES

- Improve the effectiveness of local initiatives for labour market integration of TCNs through the booster and the dissemination of the MEIC methodology.
- Increase employability and economic inclusion of TCNs, enhancing and strengthening their professional/soft skills and creating new ones; and testing innovative solutions to boost access to existing labour market inclusion initiatives and instruments shared with the cluster actors.
- Enhance involvement of key actors in terms of TCNs' labour market integration. The MEIC model capitalised and actualised will be the focus of workshops that will be held with stakeholders from EU Member States.

AT A GLANCE

EPIC-UP is an initiative funded by the AMIF programme of the European Union (EU) and coordinated by ALDA. It brings together 12 partner organisations and 13 associated partners from 8 different EU countries. The project will capitalise on the existing knowledge and know-how of the consortium working on migrant integration and inclusion to design an enhanced model of multi-actor collaboration to develop, test and implement local integration strategies.

EPIC-UP is a project with the aim of developing and testing integration strategies for the inclusion of migrants at local level.

EPIC-UP will establish Community of Practices (CoPs) in six EU countries (Bulgaria, Germany, Greece, Italy, Poland and Spain) where good practices and strategies will be leveraged. The CoPs will test and consolidate six new integration services through a social experimentation process that involves co-creation steps carried out jointly by the diverse stakeholders engaged.

The project's approach includes involving stakeholders throughout the design and implementation cycle, tapping into the potential of existing best practices that other peers can share and testing in small-scale environments. The integration strategies will be socially innovative in their ends, because they track an unmet societal challenge, but also in their means, as the migrants and refugees will be put at the centre of the design. The integration of migrants benefits both urban and rural areas in the EU in various ways. Urban areas, where most migrants reside, stand to gain from the diverse cultural perspectives and economic contributions migrants bring. While many national strategies still are designed without proper consultation of the local level stakeholders, cities have a wealth of experience in implementing evidence-based integration policies. By tapping into this experience through peer learning and better coordination among stakeholders, urban centres can enhance their integration efforts and promote social cohesion. Moreover, involving migrants directly in the democratic process and public life can strengthen political participation, addressing one of the weakest areas of integration policy and fostering a more inclusive society.

OBJECTIVES

The EPIC-UP project will have the following main expected results:

- An inclusive participatory methodology to foster the social inclusion of migrants more efficiently, will be developed and tested in six EU countries.
- The taxonomy, mapping and benchmarking of good practices on local migrant integration strategies will be disseminated.
- Migrants and refugees in the six territories will be empowered to engage and participate in the process and ultimately in the different public spheres of their new society. As a result, their voices and experiences will be better heard and considered.
- A capacity-building programme on how to promote migrants' participation in the design and implementation of integration policies will be implemented.
- A series of policy recommendations will be produced to make migration policies and initiatives better future proofed.
- Ultimately, six new integration services will have been tested locally.

AT A GLANCE

The OUT4INGOV project, led by the Autonomous Province of Trento, addresses critical challenges faced by Alpine regions, particularly mountainous areas, which experience significant out-migration of young, highly educated individuals. This trend results in brain drain, depopulation, and a decline in social cohesion, while receiving regions benefit from brain gain, enhanced economic development, and improved care services. These dynamics exacerbate territorial imbalances, widening gaps in development and quality of life across the Alpine area.

The project aims to innovate policies on youth migration and strengthen territorial cohesion through co-creation with stakeholders. It seeks to develop shared governance models, build the capacity of local actors, and empower communities. Central to its approach is the involvement of young people, particularly migrants, through initiatives such as youth councils. By fostering skill transfer, community networks, and collaborative projects, the project envisions long-term positive impacts, including a triple-win scenario benefiting sending areas, receiving regions, and young migrants themselves. With a strong focus on transnational collaboration, OUT4INGOV highlights the necessity of addressing these challenges across borders to ensure cohesive development. Its innovative approach, combining policy rationalization, co-creation, and youth engagement, sets the foundation for sustainable solutions to migration and governance issues in the Alpine region. The project is planned for a duration of 20 months.

OBJECTIVES

Overall objective: To develop and test new shared governance mechanisms (i.e. councils, observatories, networks) and to increase the capacity of cooperation and decision-making of the Alpine Space regions' stakeholders (capacity building, training) on the management of youth migration phenomena in the area, with the aim to promote a triple-win situation (for the regions of origin, for those of arrival and for young migrants), i.e. via common projects and competence circulation.

Specific objective: Enhancing institutional capacity of public authorities and stakeholders to implement macro-regional strategies and sea-basin strategies, as well as other territorial strategies.
